HIS MATCH.

Everybody said that Orphies French was crazy to think of marrying Hector Hunter. In the first place he was too old. (He was thirty-five and Orphies only eighteen.) In the next he was a widower with four children; (Orphies being an only child was unused to children;) and lastly, he was the crossest-grained, most miserly man that existed. Every one in Hillswood knew him. They knew he had been the means of his wife's finding an early grave; and now he wanted to break Orphies' heart; pretty, dimpled, brown-eyed Orphies, the pride of the village, and the admiration of all.

How she came to choose a surly, selfish man like Hector Hunter was a wonder to everybody. It was well-known that blue-eyed, sunny-faced Charlie Chester stood ready to lay down his life for her sake, and that James Singleton had offered himself at least three times. Either would have been considered a good match, and yet it was quite evident that Hector Hunter was the man she loved, as she had been known to watch beside him day and night when he was ill, and refuse all food till she was sure he was out of danger.

Yes, Orphies did love him. She was engaged to him, too, and that sunny morning in June was to witness her bridal. She was to be married in the little church where she had been baptized, in the presence of those who had known and loved her from a child. So what was really nobody's business, proved the topic of conversation throughout the entire village. All her girl friends pitied her; all her male acquaintances envied Hector Hunter. All the matrons bewailed her fate; all the sires hinted that the bridegroom was a lucky man.

Finally came the organ peals, then the solemn service—for it was solemn—and then pretty Orphies went down the aisle leaning on the arm of her sour-looking husband as smiling as if her path was strewn with roses, and her future as clear as a lake at even, when the glory of the setting sun rests upon its bosom.

'I can't afford to take a wedding trip, Orphies,' Mr. Hunter had said the night he slipped the engagement ring on her finger, and listened to the shy 'yes' whispered under the apple tree which grew back of her pleasant home. 'It costs a good deal to live nowadays. The children need clothes, and 'twill take a five dollar bill right out of my pocket to pay the minister. You won't care, will you? You had just as soon settle down as a sensible woman, hadn't you? That's the way my first wife did.'

And Orphies said 'yes, she'd do anything he liked,' like the dear little thing she was. So as soon as her gray-haired pastor had made her Mrs. Hector Hunter, she walked quietly across the village common to the large, gloomy looking house built on its edge, and closed the door in the faces of those looking after her with a world of commiseration in their eyes.

'She'll regret this act of hearn, or my name isn't Miranda Highflyer,' said one narrow-minded spinster to another.

'She'll look like a wilted rose by the time she has lived three weeks with those children,' said Miss Dean, the village dressmaker, to her customer, Mrs. Flint. 'I know all about them. I once made a dress for the first Mrs. Hunter, and I had a grand chance to see some of their actions.'

'We've lost pretty Orphies forever,' said gray-haired Farmer Slocum. 'Rude hands have picked our sweet-briar rose, and there is none other so fair.'

'We are going to have Orphies French for a stepmother,' said the Hunter children, pressing up to the window which commanded a view of Hillswood common and church. 'She's awful pretty, but it's a mystery how she ever came to marry father.'

'You know the young folks so well, Orphies, that there is no need of an introduction,' said Mr. Hunter, as his young bride kissed one rosy face after another, and sat down in his dead wife's rocking chair with the youngest on her knee. 'When you are rested we will go over the house and take a look at things; then we will have some dinner. I dismissed the housekeeper today, as I knew we should not need her after you came. Her month was up, and as a penny saved is a penny earned, I let her go. Rosa Belle is large enough to help you about the house. She is fifteen, and as tall as you are. I guess you'll pull together first rate.'

Pretty Orphies looked at her step-daughter questioningly.

'I hope so,' she said, quietly. 'Yes,' kissing her, 'I am sure we shall.'

That kiss won Rosa Belle.

'Arthur,' she said to her twelve-year-old brother the moment the door closed behind her new mother, 'take heart. I do believe there is a change coming. The second Mrs. Hunter is very sweet and smiling, but I shouldn't be surprised if father had found his match. She doesn't say a great deal, but there is a look in her eye which makes me feel funny.'

'He'll tame her before long,' answered Arthur with a knowing shake of the head. 'She'll have to knock under the same as the rest of us. I wonder if he'll let me go out on the common to night? The boys are getting up a base-ball match. Tom Jones was here this morning, and made me promise I'd come. The Skinflints are going to play against the Ironsides, but I'll bet on the——'

'You needn't bet at all,' interrupted Rosa Belle, tying on her apron and bustling about the poorly spread table in the room adjoining. 'This is father's wedding day, and it isn't at all likely he'll let you go off. Come, Kathie, peel those potatoes for me. Then set the chairs up, and tell the folks dinner is ready. I wish I had something better to offer her,' she added, looking ruefully at the platter of fried pork in the centre of the table flanked on either side by a dish of apple-sauce and a huge loaf of wheat bread.

'I wish we had silver forks and glass goblets like Hattie Andrews' folks,' said Kathie, hurriedly removing their ugly brown jackets, and tumbling them into the blue earthen dish which lettie brought from the closet.

'Well, if Mrs. Hunter is as hungry as I am, she won't think of anything but her dinner,' exclaimed Arthur, bringing up the chairs with a good deal of noise. 'The apple-sauce is scorched, Rosa Belle; I smell it. Father won't relish that.'

'Well, I can't help it,' answered the girl in a discouraged tone. He needn't have sent Martha off just at this time.'

'It's all right, dear,' said a pleasant voice behind her, and Orphies slipped into her seat at the head of the table. She had changed her wedding dress for a simple calico, and a white apron was tied about her trim waist. 'Martha was getting old, Rosa Belle. We want a younger maid-of-all-work. Never mind the forks, Kathie; I have some better ones in my trunk. Hector, it strikes me this dinning-room is rather small,' looking about the dingy, poorly furnished apartment. 'Can't it be enlarged in any way? You must see Dunham about it at once, as it must be attended to before warm weather sets in. Dog-days are so trying in Hillswood.'

'My dear Orphies'—Mr. Hunter turned two severe eyes on the dimpled face opposite—'it would cost a mint of money to enlarge this room.'

'Not so very much,' said Orphies, composedly. 'We had ours done at home. I think papa said the cost was only one hundred and fifty dollars.'

'Only one hundred and fifty dollars!' cried Mr. Hunter, staring at his young wife as if he thought her crazy. 'Why, my dear Orphies, you speak as if money grew on bushes, and could be picked as easily as berries. Besides, I never heard the first Mrs. Hunter complain that this room was close.'

'Poor thing!' said Orphies, pitying, 'perhaps she didn't dare to. What were you saying, Arthur? A base-ball match on the common? Why, that's delightful! Don't stay at home on my account, I beg of you. Go and enjoy yourself while you can. Were I a boy I'd go with you. As it is, I will sit by the window with papa and watch the game. Oh, Hector, I forgot to tell you! Florence Freeman was married yesterday, and who do you think the bridegroom was? Oh, you would never guess, so I might as well tell you. It was Percy Whitman, and such a display as was made. Not at all like our humble union.'

'Why didn't you take him, then?' growled Mr. Hunter, whose feelings were some what 'riled' by the proposed change in his house. 'He wanted you at one time, didn't he?'

Orphies laughed gleefully.

'I didn't want him,' she said. 'I had rather have you than a dozen Percy Whitmans.'

And then, springing up, she threw her arms around her husband's neck, greatly to the children's astonishment, and, if the truth be told, to his own as well.

'We will need some wood for the morning, Hector,' said Orphies that night, as her husband was preparing to exchange his boots for the comfortable slippers he had commanded Kathie to bring him.

She had found so much to do, and had entered so heartily into the duties awaiting her, that her wedding-day had passed very much the same as those spent under her father's roof.

'Father never chops the wood,' ventured Rosa Belle, seeing the look of surprise on her parent's face. 'Mamma always did it, and when she died, I looked out for the kindlings.'

Orphies gave the batch of dough she was kneading a vigorous turn.

'That isn't a woman's work,' she said with a determined shake of her head. 'Come, Arthur, help papa in with the wood, please, and then we will hear all about the base ball match. Hurry, Hector, dear. No, no! Arthur isn't strong enough to cut those great logs. That is your work. He will bring it in as fast as you get it ready, and baby and I will come and see that you do it properly.'

Catching the little one in the round, white arms bare to the elbow, and dotted here and there with patches of flour, Orphies danced out into the wood-shed, followed by the grumbling Hector and the amused children.

'Didn't I tell you father had found his match?' whispered Rosa Belle over the basket she was helping her brother to fill. He never did this in his life, and yet he doesn't say a word. I'm glad she's come.'

'If she keeps on as she has begun, I'll stand a chance of getting out to play once in a while,' answered doubting Arthur. 'I had just a jolly good time this afternoon, thanks to her, and if I never get another I can look back on that.'

Orphies had been married a week when people began to look for open war; but if there was any, the young wife kept it to herself. To be sure, life was not all sunshine, but she had expected a few rainy days would creep in. She had married Hector Hunter in spite of the reputation he bore. She knew all about his disorderly home and neglected children. She had heard of his harsh treatment of his wife, and his meanness as a citizen, and yet she gladly took him for better or worse. Why she had done so, no one knew, but probably Orphies did, for in spite of the apparent dreariness of her lot, she was as sunny, sweet-tempered and happy in her new home as he had been in her old.

Still she was not blind to the crabbedness of the man she had married. She knew he needed disciplining, therefore the reins she held were tight; but as she always took good care to handle them with gloves, he failed to notice anything strange.

True to her word, Orphies went to work to enlarge the old-fashioned dining-room. She had painters and carpenters, masons and plumbers, till Mr. Hunter was beside himself with rage, and threatened to go away if that state of affairs continued.

Orphies calmly listened to all his speeches; and when the room was finished to her satisfaction, pulled his easy chair into the most comfortable corner, brought out a new pair of slippers and foot-stool, then presented him with the bill and the most charming kiss in the world. Strange to say he paid the former without a word, and returned the latter with interest.

Still holding her tight but invisible rein, and atoning for her harsh measures by the most loving caresses, Orphies at length succeeded in subduing her unruly steed and getting him to bend to the yoke. But her ideas of improvement did not end with the enlargement of the dining-room. A new two-story ell was added the following spring. The parlor was refurnished, and a grand piano for Arthur's special use brought from the city.

'My children shall be taught to love their home,' said the determined little mother, when her husband battled against what he called a foolish piece of extravagance. 'Rosa Belle is quite old enough to go into society. Young Tomlinson is partial to her, and I had rather have him feel free to call where I can have a chance of judging of his character than to endeavor to meet her on street corners or at the village post-office. Books and music have an ennobling influence over the young, and I had rather have Arthur master of the piano than of the billiard table. In order to keep our boys and girls we must exert ourselves to please them. Give them husks at home, and they will seek the wheat elsewhere.'

To this speech Mr. Hunter replied in curt, but decisive words. He guessed he was the master of his own children, and, as to having his house filled with company from morning till night, he would not. It was out of the question. He couldn't afford it. Gas was expensive, and the wear and tear of carpets and furniture was some thing to be thought of.

But after following Rosa Belle about from corner to corner a few evenings, and breaking up a few private interviews with young Tomlinson, after listening to Arthur's boyish bets over a game of billiards, and breaking up Kathie's intimacy with the girls employed as 'cash' in Blind & Co's. store, he gave in, and quietly put all responsibility on his wife.

Though young in years, Orphies was a wise little woman. Never was as much as 'I told you so' passed her lips. Calmly accepting the burden, she carried it along as she had intended to do when Fate gave her Hector Hunter for a husband. And the man whom all the village had feared on account of his crabbedness said never a word. Books, papers, music and paintings found their way in his home. His house was always open to the young, the old always welcome to the warmest place beside his hearth.

When Rosa Belle's engagement with young Tomlinson became public, and people congratulated him on his enterprising son-in-law, he smiled quietly. When Arthur came home from college loaded with honors, he blushed with pride; and when Kathie received her diploma, and was pronounced capable of taking a high rank as public school teacher, he hugged himself with satisfaction.

Though always thoughtful and considerate of his young wife, he was never known to acknowledge her superiority by word of mouth. Man-like, he refused to give her her due, and the only praise she ever received for her toil and care was from the lips of her son Arthur the day he was admitted to the bar.

'I tell you, Tomlinson,' he said to that interested brother-in-law, 'all I am I owe to my plucky little step-mother. My father probably meant well, but I should never have reached the place I occupy to-day if he hadn't met his match.'

The Man who Dares.

The man who dares risk his neck now and then, but he never risks being forgotten or starved to death. Overcaution and indecision never hamper his movements or interfere with realization of his opportunities. He follows out the splendid old Gascon mottoe, 'Courage, and you may rule the world!'

The man who dares is a maker of speeches and a builder of worlds. He is the institutor of reforms, the redresser of wrongs, the introducer of novelties, the pioneer of revolutions that hurl the world forward on its course.

He is often also the head of great offences and the abuser of great powers, for the man who dares is always a part of his time so constituted that he has the leaven of evil in him as well as that of good. But, like some poisons known to science, he carries his own cure, for when he violates the rights and exceeds the priveleges of mankind there is always some other man who dares ready to oppose and give him battle.

The timid and faltering gaze on him with wonder. The stout of heart find in him an inspiration and encouragement. He leads in the bloodless battles of the social movement and in the roaring campaigns of the great wars. And he is ever a stirring and splendid figure, full of faults and weaknesses, because his audacity make him unreasonable, but instinct also with grand vitality and self-reliance that is a lesson for the present and a legend for the future.—Family Fiction

His Real Worth.

The fact that the wearing of 'cloth of gold' or 'cloth of frieze, has nothing to do with a man's real standing is one which often receives public recognition. There are so many clear-sighted people in the world, that the true gentleman, in the majority of cases is preferred to the pretender.

A well-dressed young woman recently entered a street-car which was pretty well crowded, and mostly with men whose appearance was indicative of having done a hard day's work. In a moment one of the men was on his feet with the remark:

'Here is a seat, miss.'

'Oh you are very kind, sir,' she said, but I would much rather stand I am not tired and I know you must be; so please keep your seat.'

'I can stand better than you can,' persisted the man; so please take the seat.'

The young woman looked as though she disliked to offend the man by refusing to accept the seat, and seemed undecided as to what she should do. A flashily dressed fellow standing beside her said:

'Go on; take the seat. That old sport is only a laborer in some brick yard. Sit down. Don't mind him at all.'

Giving the fellow a look of extreme disgust she replied:

'He may be a laborer, but he is a gentleman, sir, and you might follow his example with profit,' and turning to the workman with thank you, sir, she took the proffered seat.—Philadelphia Bulletin

Law and Justice.

An eminent American lawyer, now dead, no less eminent a one in brief than Charles O'Conor, once remarked in the course of a newspaper interview, 'There is no injustice impossible under the law, provided accident gives the unjust man the semblance of a righteous cause, and when he gets his action in before his opponent.'

A great English barrister who visited this country some years ago observed to his neighbor at the dinner table, while discussing the eccentricities of the law, 'There's too much law all the world over and nobody knows it better than the lawyer himself. We're buried under decisions and precedents. We're tangled with tape till we can't move without being hauled up short. If we're honest any knavein our own trade that has as much wit or less scruples may with luck and circumstances in his favor trick us. If we're not honest.'——

'Well?' he was asked.

'Well,' said he, 'I haven't tried it yet, but I've been tempted to.'

His neighbor told him what Charles O'Conor had said, and he remarked:

'The whole thing has been put in much compacter shape by one of our own judges. He was called on at a banquet to respond to the toast of 'Law and Justice.' He rose and said, 'Gentlemen, those are two distinct toasts. Shall I take them seriatim?'

The truth of these criticisms must be patent to every one who follows the affairs of our courts. The distinguishing characteristic of our suits at the bar nowadays is the universal resort by the lawyers to quibblings and manœuvres. It seems to be no longer a question whether the defendant is innocent, but whether the law can not be twisted into saving him from punishment.

Offenders whose guilt is beyond a peradventure are exempted from responsibility by the devices of skilled attorneys, and most the abandoned malefactors are often able to fight for months the laws that have been outraged. It costs a fortune to bring a public robber or a corrupt corporation to book, and often the labyrinthine ramifications of the statues provided for their escape after all.

Nor is this the only evil. The same complicated machinery which is so ductile and friendly to the guilty on occasions may be a terribly engine against the innocent. A man who is weak or without friends or means may, as has been shown, become the victim of circumstances and precedents until the law performs on him the grossest injustice. There are beyond doubt innocent men in jail and guilty men enjoying freedom simply because what we call law has ceased to be the master of men and become their tool.—Family Fiction.

Hypocrisy.

Nothing is more honorable than to have courage enough to execute the commands of reason and conscience. If we maintain the dignity of our nature and the station assigned us, we will be proof against poverty or pain, and able to stand adversity under all shapes with decency and resolution. Such men never assume a cowardly and servile humor, that would disguise their inward feeling under a visor. A generous heart never belies its own thoughts, but shows all that is good and manly in itself.

There is nothing more like an honest man than a rogue, whose best outfit is hypocrisy. He delights in the most sublime speculations, as it costs nothing to have them magnificent and is both the archer and the mark always aiming at his own praise or profit. A writer gives this device: "Always judge your fellow passengers the opposite of what they strive to appear." A military man is not quarrelsome, for no one doubts his courage; a clergyman is not straightlaced, for his piety is not questioned; a woman that is all smiles and graces may be a vixen at heart, and the stranger who is obsequious and over civil without apparent cause, is generally treacherous.

"An open foe may prove a curse,
But a pretended friend is worse.

Hypocrisy is the home that vice pays to virtue. It often wears the livery of religion, and is cautious of giving scandal. It has been remarked "Wherever God erects a house of prayer, the Devil always builds a chapel there," and the examination often finds him with a large congregation. When any good thing arises, there comes up an ugly carricature of it, sliding up against reality—under mimicking its wisdom or overacting its folly, and with half the world all this passes for genuine.

"O what may man within him hide,
Though angel on the out ward side."

Many people live ironical lives, and by their histrionic efforts, succeed in trimming sail to suit the wind; if they cannot turn it, they turn their mills, and set them so, that no matter how the wind blows, their grist is sure to be ground.

We should personate only ourselves; it is hard to act a part long, for when truth is not at the bottom, nature will always be endeavoring to return and will in the end betray herself. Men never affect to be what they are, but what they are not. A writer says: 'Swim smoothly in the stream of thy nature, and live but one man.' To single hearts, doubling is excruciating; such tempers must sweat to dissemble, and prove but hypocritical hypocrites. Their simulation must be short. Since sincerity is thy temper, let veracity be thy virtue in words, manners and actions.

The Judge says: "The girl who marries for money often gets a foot thrown in." Always. That's the only kind of a human that can be married for money.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

"AN EXCELLENT TICKET" is the universal expression of impartial people about the nominees placed in the field by the late Democratic state convention at Allentown. Hon. J. Ross Thompson, of Erie, nominated for Supreme Judge, is well and favorably known as one of the foremost lawyers in the state, while B. J. McGrann, of Lancaster, the nominee for State Treasurer, is a man of undisputed qualifications for the office. The ticket is a strong one and is bound to be popular. The democratic party can point with pride to their standard bearers, who are backed by a platform that will bear the scrutiny of the most exacting politician. We publish the platform as a whole on our fourth page. The work was well done and the resolutions bear the stamp of circumspect statesmanship, and strong loyalty to the national administration. The matter of tariff reform is handled with care and the clause referring to that point is framed in a manner that will give satisfaction to all but radical high protectionists. Taking the well-selected ticket and very acceptable platform together with the present unsatisfactory state administration a united Democracy stands a good chance for victory in November.

IT is a gratifying sign to the Democrats when leading Republican journals speak in high terms of praise of democratic candidates and such articles as quoted below cannot fail to give the voters of Pennsylvania, irrespective of party affiliations, a very favorable impression of the democratic nominess for the state offices. The Erie Dispatch, the leading Republican journal of the Northwest, says of the nomination of Mr. Thompson:

The citizens of Erie and of the entire Northwest, without distinction of party, will be gratified at the splendid compliment bestowed on our townsman, Colonel J. Ross Thompson, by the Democratic State Convention in tendering him the nomination for the Supreme Judgeship. He is a candidate who deserves the highest honors which his party has to bestow and he will unquestionably command the united and enthusiastic support of the Pennsylvania Democracy. The Erie Democracy ought to give Colonel Thompson an ovation upon his return to the city.

In like manner the Lancaster Examiner, the old and aggressive Republican organ of Lancaster, the home of Mr. McGrann, welcomes his candidacy as follows:

The ticket nominated by the Democrats in point of character and ability is a good and strong one. We congratulate our townsman, Mr. B. J. McGrann, upon the honor thrust upon him in being chosen as the candidate for State Treasurer. It is true that we must welcome him with hospitable hands to sure defeat, but still the nomination of men of his high standing takes the lowness of personalities out of the campaign and elevates the tone of politics. The campaign this year will be fought on strict party lines. The question of character and ability on both tickets is conceded.

NEW YORK business men have already got tired of the half holiday experiment and they are ready to have the law repealed at the next session of the state legislature. They consider it too hard on their pocket-books. Of course the other side of the house, the employes, are perfectly satisfied with the present arrangement, and as they are largely in the majority, the legislators will most likely lend their ear to the party that furnishes the most votes. Holidays, even by halves, are hard to get rid of when once established.

—Ladies, the 5 and 8 cent Dress Goods at D. S. Kauffman's store can't be equalled.

Money is a powerful factor, but Jake Sharp, the New York boodle alderman, with all his ill-gotten lucre, will hardly be able to purchase the much coveted liberty. District Attorney Martin, who seems to be fully equal to the situation, has appealed to Gov. Hill in a very strong and convincing way to call at once an extra session of the Supreme Court to pass a decision over the postponement of Sharp's sentence, which gives him five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $5000. The governor has issued the requested order and it is to be hoped that the supreme court will cut off all possible chances for the fraudulent alderman to escape just punishment.

THE late deal in the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tells but the old, old story. Its business was run on the principle of "everything or nothing," and while young Garrett attempted to gobble up everything, the creditors stopped in and left him with nothing. Nothing like doing a judicious business.

M. S. QUAY, elected to the United States Senate, sent in his resignation as state treasurer last week, and Governor Beaver has appointed William Livesy, of Allegheny, as his successor.

HON. CHARLES S. WOLFE, of Lewisburg, still figures prominently in the prohibition party. He has been made chairman of that party's state committee.

Manual Training vs. Professional Education.

From the Phila. Sunday Times.

It is a common remark in the South that too many of the educated colored people become preachers and teachers and too few of them learn any practical handicraft that would elevate them in the rank of labor above field hands. In this the colored people are evidently imitating the whites both North and South, as the educated young whites everywhere rush into some form of professional life. The colored youth have greater obstacles thrown in their pathway to a trade than the whites, if possible, and it begins to be very apparent that some sort of manual training will have to be provided in the schools. Unless this is done the young colored students will continue to graduate as preachers and teachers out of all proportion to the demand for persons of their race to fill these useful professions. It is evident that manual training for pupils, black and white, is becoming an imperative necessity.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 5, 1887.

President Cleveland's "luck," which was such a noticeable feature of his early career—that is, from the time he was elected sheriff till his elevation to the Presidency—has become almost proverbial, so that many regard the great Reformer of the Democracy as a veritible "man of Destiny," and they consider the fortunes of the party safe while entrusted to his uniformly successful leadership. And remember the Buchard alliteration, the rainy day in New York and the victory won by some twelve hundred plurality! Since his inauguration all of the President's Democretic rivals have been removed by death, and his former competitors have done nothing to improve their chances; true, Blaine has kissed the Blarney stone, but he has since forfeited the support of the Irish vote by hobnobbing with the Prince of Wales and winning British popularity.

Butler has placed himself on record as favoring the wholesale pensioning of soldiers, including even the Ex-Confederates. St. John has had enough and declines another nomination. But last, though not least, Belva Lockwood must be considered. She is a resident of Washington, and shall be permitted to tell her own story, which she does as follows: "To quote several illustrious examples 'I am out of politics' just now. The Women Suffrage Party will be in the field, however, you can depend upon that, for we will never give up the fight until the victory is won. Now, I think we ought to nominate the most popular woman in the country for President in 1888. I have been looking over the list of candidates, and I have come to the conclusion that Mrs. Cleveland is that woman. Nominate Mrs. Cleveland for President and we will sweep the country. She is my candidate." Gen. Sherman has also made the same nomination, and so between Cleveland and Cleveland the Democratic regime should be prolonged for another term at least.

Speaker and Mrs. Carlisle are the guests of President and Mrs. Cleveland at Oak View, and rumor has it that the visit is not entirely of a social character—that, in fact, a tariff scheme is being formulated, the financial features of which are the abolition of the tobacco tax, non-interference with the whisky tax, and a large reduction in the customs duties on the necessities of life, the internal-revenue feature to be admitted only as a compromise in consideration of a very positive reduction in duties. This is said to be the outline of the Administration programme. Secretary Fairchild and Mr. Mills, who is regarded as the coming chairman of the Committee on the Ways and Means, will, it is said, join the conference next week. I am convinced that at the coming session of Congress the white influence of the President will be exerted in behalf of a conservative readjustment of the tariff, and I think with a flattering prospect of success.

Secretary Bayard expresses the hope that the solution of the annoying Canadian fisheries dispute, which has been a bone of contention between the United States and England nearly a hundred years, is now at hand, as an International Commission of the ablest Statesmen of the two countries will soon meet in this city for the purpose of deliberating upon that vexed question. If the President and his advisers can settle the disputed Canadian boundary line in a satisfactory manner, it will certainly be the greatest triumph of American diplomacy of the present century.

The doctors have captured the Capital; they are here in full force from every State and Territory of the Union and from nearly every foreign nation, and their Medical Congress meets to-day. Perhaps it would not be too much to say that the results of this meeting will mark the beginning of a new era in the history and practice of the healing art. Many of the large drug firms of the country are utilizing the occasion as a vast advertising scheme, and some of the exhibits of drugs and medical appliances would do credit to an international exposition. One house, it is said, has expended $46 in such a display. The doctors will probably agree with the opinion of the novelist, Wm. Howells, who pronounces Washington the "most charming city in the world." Although they visit the city where malaria most prevails, still it is believed the doctors will not mind a trifle like that.

Miscellaneous News.

The Exeter theatre, of London, was burned on Monday night and it is thought that over 140 lives were lost.

Samuel Vandersall, a merchant of Lancaster, Pa., fell out of the upper story of his residence on Monday evening, Sept. 5th, while asleep, and striking on his head, received fatal injuries.

Monday, Sept. 5th, was the first day of the international gathering of physicians at Washington, D. C., and visiting medical men from all parts of the globe are in that city by thousands. On Tuesday evening President and Mrs. Cleveland received about 5000 members of the medical congress with their wives and lady friends at the White House.

A terrible riot occurred at Hazelton, Pa., last Sunday, Sept. 4th. It was a sanguinary conflict between a lot of Irishmen and Italians. Knives, Stiletoes, and stones were used in a lively manner. Several of the contestants on both sides were badly injured and one man is likely to die. The affray occurred on South Pine street which is thickly populated with Irish and Italians. The women of both nationalities joined in the fight with a vengeance.

—In many localities Hood's Sarsaparilla is in such general demand that it is the recognized family medicine. People write that "the whole neighborhood is taking it," &c. Particularly is this true of Lowell, Mass., where it is made, and where more of Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold than of any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier. It is the great remedy for debility, scrofula, dyspepsia, billiousness, or any disease caused by an impure state or low condition of the blood. Give it a trial.

A serious accident occurred in Columbia, Pa., on Monday evening Sept. 5th, at the crossing of Perry street and the Columbia railroad. Frank McAtee, living at Lochiel, was on his way home and stopped over in Columbia, where with several companions, he got on a drunk. He finally lay down on the tracks of the Reading and Columbia railroad to sleep his drunk off and was run over by the 8.20 train. His right leg was cut off below the knee and his left hand frightfully mangled.

GRAPES AND GRAPE JUICE.—The art of preserving Grape Juice without fermentation and the art of fermenting the Oporto Grape into wine in this country has been brought to a greater degree of perfection by Mr. Alfred Speer, of New Jersey, than by any other person. The Claret and Burgundy are very popular as dinner wines and the Port and Unfermented Juice as evening wines as well as for the communion table and for invalids. For sale by druggists.

A Failure Because Others Failed.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Sept. 2.—The sheriff to-day levied on the interest of D. W. Holt, of Philipsburg, Centre county, in the Cottage planing company of this city on an execution of $12,000. Holt's embarrassment is said to be due to the failure of Robert Hare Powell Sons & Co., of Philadelphia.

A Child Burned to a Crisp.

LANCASTER, Sept. 4.—This morning the stable of Michael Adams near Litiz was entirely consumed by fire and one of his children, a boy two years of age, was burned to a crisp, while another aged 5, was rescued with some difficulty. It is supposed that the fire started from matches with which the boys were playing in the stable.

Bishop Harris, of the M. E. church, Dead.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Bishop Harris died this afternoon of fatty degeneration of the heart and a stoppage of the heart's valves. The family of Bishop William L. Harris, consisting of Mrs. Harris, Mr. William H. Harris, a son; Miss Harris and Miss Hatfield, of Chicago, another daughter, were at his bedside.

A Gravel Train Derailed.

MILTON, Pa., Sept. 5.—The gravel train on the Philadelphia and Reading railroad was derailed this morning a short distance from this place, causing a wreck. A brakeman by the name of Joyce, who lived at Mahanoy Plane, was killed. None of the other train hands were injured, but cars were badly broken and traffic was delayed several hours.

Typhoid Fever Epidemic at Robertsdale.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Sept. 2.—A serious typhoid fever epidemic prevails at Robertsdale, this county. There are fifty cases, and there have been nine or ten deaths. Physicians attribute the disease to unclean wells. The borough authorities have ordered a thorough cleaning up, but to-day four new cases were reported.

Frightened by a Cave-In.

WILKESBARRE, September 4.—There was another big cave-in at Cork lane, Pittston, last night. The earth sank about five feet. The cave-in covers an area of one acre. The houses occupied by Patrick Loftus and James Trainey were wrecked. The families, who were in bed at the time, had to flee for their lives. This is the third cave-in at this place within a year.

The Schuylkill Strangely Shaken.

NORRISTOWN, September 2.—A slight earthquke shock was noticed at a few minutes past eight o'clock last evening by several people who wereout on the river, there being a curious swell of the waters as though a steamboat had passed, when none was in the vicinity. The swell was felt at various points on the river, but no shock was reported on the land anywhere near.

The Countesies Accepted.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—President Cleveland telegraphed from Washington this evening, accepting the courtesies of the commercial exchange of this city, and will attend the reception tendered him by the exchange on the morning of Friday, September 16.

Another G. A. R. Post Clears its Skirts.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 2.—The members of O. J. Crane post, G. A. R., have adopted resolutions which declare: "That this post looks with disapprobation and condemnation upon every and any demonstration of disrespect toward the legally constituted executive of the national government, the same being subversive of the fundamental principles of the G. A. R. as set forth in the third section of article 6; and furthermore, we hope and trust that the department in its convocation at St. Louis will take such action as will demonstrate that the G. A. R. is not an organization for political purposes, or through which to manifest malice, hatred or ill will."

TRIUMPH OF ELECTRICITY.

Successful Test of an Electric Locomotive in the Lykens Valley Coal Mine.

The electric plant which has been erected at the colliery of the Lykens Valley coal company, in the upper end of Dauphin Co., proves to be a complete success. The motor or electric locomotive on its first trial trip ran into the mine a distance of over 1,000 feet and out again. Another and more successful test was made shortly afterward, when the electric motor was run into the mine a distance of over one mile. Ten cars were attached to it. Five of these were loaded with coal and five with rocks. The load, weighing over 112,000 pounds, was drawn without the least difficulty. All curves, some very sharp, and grades were surmounted The locomotive is now making regular trips, running a mile in about four and a half minutes. The full power of the motor has not been tested yet, but it is thought that it will be able to pull twenty five cars. At present it does away with twelve mules, that being the number required to haul the cars from this drift. All the experts who witnessed the test express themselves highly pleased. The chief engineer of the Union electric company of Philadelphia, has offered as a representative of that company to replace, at their own expense, all the heavy machinery used to handle the coal and the heavy hoisting engines with electricity provided that the company will purchase the electric plant if it proves successful.

A NOVEL FAIR ATTRACTION.

Many Presents Awaiting a Couple to be Married on the Public Grounds.

SCRANTON, Sept. 4.—At the Lackawanna County Agricultural society's fair here this month there will be some novel attractions. On the afternoon of the second day the Rev. David Spencer, D. D., pastor of the Penn avenue Baptist church will marry a couple right in the sight of all the people on the grand stand. The happy couple, it is not yet announced who they are to be will start with a good supply of both useful and ornamental articles. One of the society's officers has bought a $20 dress pattern for the bride, and the citizen will give them a rousing send off in the shape of a $35 baby carriage, two barrels of flour, a parlor carpet, two dozen cabinet photographs, five bushels of potatoes, a $10 cradle, a $25 case of wine a $7 silk umbrella, 1,000 feet of hemlock lumber, $5 worth of sheet music, an $8 mirror, two tons of coal, a $12 plough, an $18 range, shoes for the bride and groom, a 20 pound bar of soap, one-half dozen bottles of wine, a $10 ring, a $15 picture, a toilet set worth $15, $10 wedding cards, and a $15 robe. All the daily newspapers in this city have volunteered to send the couple their journals for a year free gratis, a dentist has promised to give them $15 worth of dental work at any time within five years, and a hardware firm will hand over $15 worth of cooking utensils as soon as the knot is tied. Many other less valuable articles will be presented to the couple after the trying ordeal of so public a marriage.

Then there is to be a baby show in the main building. The babies are to be dressed in white, with either blue or red ribbons around their necks. Prizes of $15 and $10 are to be given to the heaviest and second heaviest infants not over one year old. The lightest weights between nine and twelve months will be rewarded with a prize of five dollars.

MANY FAMILIES STRICKEN.

Panic in a Western Pennsylvania Town Over a Strange Epidemic.

PITTSBURG, September 2.—The residents of the little town of Lockport, sixty miles from this city, on the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, are greatly excited about a mysterious disease that has appeared in their midst. The consternation has become so great among the people of that section that it has almost assumed the form of a panic. They are also very indignant at the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which company they blame for being the cause of the sickness that is fast decreasing their population. For several weeks past the younger members of the families have one by one been attacked with the same illness, until at present it is reported that nearly one-half of the families in Lockport have had one or more of their members stricken by the disease.

The physicians who had been attending the cases have expressed themselves as being unable to exactly diagnose the ailment. They say it is of the nature of black diphtheria. The person, after having the first intimation of being ill, rapidly becomes worse and in two or three days the crisis is reached. The person then commences to vomit and grow black in the face. The tonsils swell so rapidly that the throat is almost closed. It was reported this morning that thirteen persons had died from the effects of the disease within the last five days. Children seem to be more susceptible to the disease than older persons, a young man 18 years of age being the oldest victim thus far reported.

The Texas Floods.

WACO, Texas, Sept. 2.—Latest advices from Hill county are that every bridge in that county was washed away by rains, and the damage to crops and farms will not fall short of $100,000. In Bosque county and along the line of Santa Fe railway the damage is also very heavy. Of the little towns here Iredell, Whitney, Hico and Aquilla have suffered most. It is believed the Central and Missouri Pacific roads are the heaviest losers. The Missouri Pacific has a force of nearly 1,000 men at work on the line near Grand View. A train on that road was detained between Itasca and Grand View from Monday night till yesterday evening. It was out on the prairie, nine miles from any house, and many of the passengers suffered for lack of food.

Big Railroad Deal.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—A preliminary contract was executed to-day between the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company J. S. Morgan & Co., Baring Brothers & Co. and Brown Shipley & Co., of London, and their allied houses in New York and Philadelphia. This contract provided for the negotiation of $5,000,000 of Baltimore and Ohio consolidated fives and $5,000,000 of Baltimore and Ohio preferred stock, for the purpose of paying off the entire floating debt of the company and placing it upon a sound financial basis. The conditions are as follows:

1. The verification of statements, &c., as made.

2. That the management of the company shall be placed in competent hands satisfactory to the syndicate.

3. That satisfactory contracts shall be made between the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and the other railroads for the New York business which shall remove all antagonism between them on the subject and insure the permanent working of the Baltimore and Ohio in entire harmony with the other trunk lines, and also avoid the construction or threat of construction of expensive parallel lines north and east of Philadelphia.

The syndicate is composed of the houses mentioned above together with Drexel, Morgan & Co., Drexel & Co., Brown Bros, & Co. and Kidder, Peabody & Co. "The policy of the syndicate as regards the telegraph, express and sleeping car interests will be that the company shall be managed on the same basis as other trunk lines and thus remove the antagonism that has arisen from policy heretofore pursued. The express contract has already been disposed of, and while there is no necessity so far as the debt of the company is concerned, for disposing of the others, they may or may not be paid, as shall be hereafter determined."

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CENTENNIAL.

The Programme Arranged for President and Mrs. Cleveland.

Chairman Thompson, of the reception committee of the Constitutional Centennial celebration, has announced that the President of the United States, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland will arrive here on Thursday, September 15, and will be at once escorted to the Lafayette Hotel, where rooms have been secured for them. On Friday morning, from 9 to 10 30 o'clock, he will be present at a reception tendered him by the Commercial Exchange. From this reception he will be escorted to the grand stand on Broad street, arriving at the stand at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Cleveland will view the military parade from the Lafayette Hotel.

In the evening the President will attend a reception at the Academy of Music tendered him by the Constitutional Centennial Commission. At this reception Mrs. Cleveland will receive with the President, assisted by the members of the Cabinet and their ladies.

Saturday morning, from 9 to 10.30 o'clock, at a public reception, the place to be hereafter designated, the President will be happy to receive all those who may desire to pay their respects. From this reception he will proceed to Independence Square, where he will participate in the ceremonies and deliver an address. Mrs. Cleveland will occupy a seat on the stand during the ceremonies.

In the evening the President will attend the banquet at the Academy of Music given by the University of Pennsylvania, the American Philosophical Society, and Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, the Franklin Institute of the State of Pennsylvania, the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and the Law Academy of Philadelphia. Immediately after the banquet he will return to Washington.

Mrs. Cleveland will be entertained on Saturday afternoon and evening by a number of her friends, but will be present at the Academy of Music during the latter part of the evening to hear the addresses made on that occasion.

The chairman of the committee has personal assurances from the President and Mrs. Cleveland as to their approval of the above arrangements.

A Novel Bet.

While I am not a betting man, said F. J. Cheney, of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., I considered it my religious duty to make that fellow a bet, you see he was about dead, and I guess he would of died before Spring, if I would not of got him on the bet. You know some men had rather lose their life than lose a hundred, well he was one of that kind, and we both came near being out, but I saved my hundred and it only cost him ten dollars. How's that? He sent for me one day and said the doctors had all given him up to die, with the catarrh. I told him that I would bet him $100 that Hall's Catarrh Cure would cure him or I would give him $100 if it failed. He took the latter proposition. This was three months ago; you see how he looks now, don't you, as well as any one, and a dandy.—American, Toledo, O.

that the most delicate stomach will bear.

A SPECIFIC FOR MALARIA, RHEUMATISM, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, and all Germ Diseases.

THE MOST SCIENTIFIC AND SUCCESSFUL BLOOD PURIFIER. Superior to quinine. Rev. Wm. Lucas, Rector Grace Church, Ravenna, O. writes: "I cordially endorse Kaskine as being just what you claim, an excellent substitute for quinine, with none of its bad effects. Mrs. Lucas had a serious form of malaria, and was confined to her bed for months. Kaskine had her up and around in a few days, and in a short time cured her."

Living in the malaria districts of Maryland I became a victim of worst forms of malarial fever. I drugged myself with quinine and other remedies with out avail. I was greatly reduced when I heard of Kaskine. Its curative powers were a medical revelation to me. It cured me and I have not had a return of the troubles. (Prof.) J. D. Hird, B. A., Asst. Chemist, Maryland Agricultural College.

Letters from the above persons, giving full details, will be sent on application.

Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle. Sold by druggists or sent by mail on receipt of price.

Knowledge is Power: Read!

The above cut represents the obverse and reverse sides of the GOLD and JEWELLED MEDAL presented to Dr. W. H. Parker by the NATIONAL MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, in recognition of his masterly Medical Treatise, entitled the SCIENCE OF LIFE OR SELF PRESERVATION, which treats upon Nervous and Physical Debility, Premature Decline, Exhausted Vitality, and the ten thousand ills that flesh is heir to, whether arising from Errors of Youth, Imprudence, Over Taxation, Excesses, Accidental or Constitutional Predisposition. It is an invaluable treatise for the Young, the Middle-Aged, and even the Old, whether in health or disease. No other work equal to it has ever been published. It has been highly praised by the newspaper press throughout the country, and even in England. Three hundred pages, substantially bound, embossed muslin, full gilt. Contains 125 extraordinary prescriptions for prevailing diseases, either one of which is worth five times the price of the book, while some of them are absolutely invaluable, and should be in the hands of everybody. Guaranteed the best work upon the above named subjects, or the money returned in every instance.

PRICE ONLY ONE DOLLAR, by mail postpaid, and concealed in plain wrapper. Illustrative pamphlet, prospectus, free, if you send now. Cut this out, as you may never see it again. Address DR. W. H. PARKER, No. 4 BULFINCH ST., BOSTON, MASS., who is the CHIEF CONSULTING PHYSICIAN of the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, and may be confidentially consulted on all diseases requiring skill and experience.

—Miss Rebecca Boyer, of Philadelphia, a sister of Mrs. Geo. Mensh, of this place, has been in town and Rebersburg, visiting her relations for the last four weeks. The lady started for her home this week, but before going ordered the JOURNAL to be sent to her.

NOTICE.—The undersigned give notice that they have disposed of their grain business at Coburn, and give notice to all parties that are indebted to them to settle their accounts by the first of Oct. The books are in the hands of Andrew Campbell. WHITMER & LINCOLN.

—A company of six gentlemen in Lock Haven have organized to manufacture and sell an article for heating vehicles in cold weather, of which Elder T. A. Long, of Howard, is the inventor and patentee. It is a valuable invention.—Daily News.

—Lock Haven lost one of its popular citizens by the death of Lewis M. Schuyler, better known as Judge Schuyler which occurred week before last. Deceased was connected with the Fallon House, one of the best hotels in Lock Haven, for many years.

—The carload of Illinois horses, select stock, which will be offered at public sale next week, are expected to arrive here either on Saturday or Sunday. They will be kept in the stables of the National hotel, and lovers of horseflesh should make it a point to see them.

—J. P. Sylvis, the shoemaker, left this place last week for Trenton Ontario, with the intention of making it his permanent place of residence. After having found a good opening for his trade he will send for his family, who are still here awaiting news from him.

—Miss Bessie Deininger, a daughter of A. O. Deininger, Esq., of Clarksburg, Pa., who is spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs. C. H. Stover, at Lemoyne, and other relations, in company with her friend Miss Clara Reffsnyder, of this place, Sundayed at the editor's shanty.

—The Messrs. Spigelmyer have quite an antiquity on exhibition in their china hall on Penn street. It is a sugar bowl which was imported in this country from Scotland by Jerome Spigelmyer's great grandmother in 1796. It bears the marks of long and continued service, but is well preserved.

—Here we are! Genuine Ladies' Kid shoes for $1.50, solid leather counter and insertion. Every pair guaranteed the best kid and no shoddy skin. You have often paid $2.00 and $2.50 for the same shoe. We know it. Get your shoemaker to look at shoe bought at our store. J. H. MUSSER & SON.

—Any person who wants paying work as local or traveling agent for warranted nursery stock should apply stamp to Jas. H. Whitney, nurseryman, Rochester, N. Y. No experience necessary, and complete outfit is furnished free, steady work the year round and all stock warranted to be in good condition. 29-12t

—There is a talk that J. H. Musser & Son will have the run of the shoe trade this fall. We say they deserve it. They have gone to not a little trouble to know all about the different makes of boots and shoes and are determined to have only the best at the most reasonable prices.

—A special train which will leave Bellefonte next Saturday at 9.45 a. m., after the arrival of the Bald Eagle Valley train from Tyrone, will reach Coburn at about 11 o'clock, when the veterans arriving on that train will be escorted to the picnic grounds. Trains will leave Coburn to return to Bellefonte at 3.30 and 6.30 p. m.

—M. C. Gephart, one of our school teachers, has the agency for that popular organ, the Smith American, and is pushing its sale as vigorously as it is possible for him to do in his spare hours. The instrument is one of the best-made and sweetest-toned organs in the market, as all who have had an opportunity to try will readily admit.

—Rev. G. H. Schleh, late pastor of Trinity Evangelical church, of Baltimore, has resigned his charge there, and resides now in Milton, where he will remain till the meeting of the next conference. Rev. Schleh will be remembered by our town people as one of the brightest members of the conference which met here about a year and a half ago.

—Very frequently the housewife is caught in an awkward position by receiving unexpected guests for a meal. She may not have a bite of fresh meat in the house. That is the time when the Millheim meat market will help you out of your trouble, because you can buy there at any hour in the day the best beef, veal, mutton and pork. Always fresh.

—L. E. Frain, son of landlord Frain, of the Keystone hotel, Selinsgrove, came to town by dog cart, propelled by mule power and circulated among his many friends and companions here a few days. Lewis is growing to be quite a handsome young man and what is better yet he is of a studious mind and possesses the natural qualifications for a successful business man. Were glad to see him.

SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.—W. T. Auman's school, which closes its summer term this week, will give another entertainment, to-morrow, (Friday) evening in the U. B. church. This entainment will be of a similar nature to the one given several weeks ago and no admission price will be charged. A collection will be lifted to defray the necessary expenses. All are invited to come.

HORSE SALE.—Messrs. Muthersbaugh and Zerbe, from Lewistown, Pa., will have a carload of Illinois horses, first-class stock, consisting of good drivers and draft-horses, at the stables of the National Hotel, Millheim, Pa., within the next 15 days, to make public sale of the lot. The horses will be brought here several days before the sale so that purchasers will have an opportunity to examine them.

—When attending the picnic of the Centre county veteran club next Saturday, don't forget that the Luth. Mite Society of Coburn has a festival at Coburn and that you will further a good cause by investing some of your spare nickels, dimes or dollars in their ice cream, cakes, oysters. They will have a temporary restaurant on the depot grounds where hot coffee may be had at any time in the afternoon or evening.

CENTRE COUNTY PROHIBITION CONVENTION.—The voters of Centre county who favor the prohibition of the liquor traffic by statutory enactment and constitutional amendment, and who adopt the principles expressed in the platform adopted by the convention at Harrisburg, Aug. 24th, 1887, are requested to meet in convention at Unionville, on Tuesday, Sept. 20th, 1887, at 11 o'clock, a. m., to place in nomination a county ticket, &c. Come all.

J. ZEIGLER, County Chairman.

—Do not be induced to take some other preparation when you call for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Be sure to get Hood's, which is peculiar.

—We understand that J. H. Musser & Son, the lively shoe men on Main street, have already gotten in a good fall stock of boots and shoes, but not near what they expect to get in during the next four weeks. It will certainly be worthwhile to see if it would be to your advantage to buy your boots and shoes at their store.

FRESH CIDER.—The undersigned is prepared to manufacture cider at a moment's notice by an improved process and by hydraulic power at his saw mill at Woodward. The press is conceded by all as the best in the market and will do satisfactory and quick work in all cases. The public are invited to bring their apples, in quantities from 5 to 500 bushels, and they will be accommodated in the best manner.

22-tf J. C. MEYER.

—Wm. Miller, of Main street, had a painful misfap the other day, while working at the curtistones around the M. E. church. He was on his knees with one of his hands resting on the ground, when a heavy iron crowbar standing near fell over and upon the hand. He had some of fingers severely bruised but is doing well at this writing.

—Several parties from this place have been to Nittany Valley to fetch peaches. A Mr. Brownlee, residing near the Junction, is said to have a peach orchard that will yield anywhere between 400 and 500 bushels. They range in price from $1.75 to $2.00 per bushel. Mr. Israel Confer brought some eight bushels and D. L. Zerby about thirteen bushels of the precious fruit from Nittany Valley this week.

—Our musical friend, Prof. Alfred Beerly, who has been making his home with friends in Tusseyville during the past summer, left there on Tuesday for Chicago, Ill., where he has been tendered the position of conductor of a choir of 150 voices in one of the principal Methodist churches. The offer came through C. H. Leslie, of the Chicago Music company. We heartily congratulate Prof. Beerly in his new and no doubt lucrative position.

TO THE PUBLIC.—H. S. Clemens, M. D., specialist in all chronic affections, and who also treats diseases largely by inhalations, will visit patients once a month at Bellefonte, with office at the Brockerhoff House, for one day only to examine them, and then will send the medicines from his regular office at the city of Allentown, Pa. Send for testimonials. Date of next visit will be Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 13th and 14th, at the usual hours. Please remember the date.

—I HAD KIDNEY DISORDER and say for the good of others that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cured me. Rev. S. C. Chandler, Lebanon Springs, N.Y. I had Stone in the Bladder and Gravel in the Kidneys. I used Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and am now well.—E. D. Parsons, Rochester, N. Y. Price $1. Send 2 cent stamp to Dr. Kennedy, Bondout, N. Y., for a book on Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders. Mention this paper. 34-4t

—From yesterdays Millinburg Telegraph: The Lutheran church building at New Berlin has been thoroughly renovated and entirely remodeled, internally and externally, and has also been beautifully refurnished. It is expected that Revs. Jno. A. Earnest, F. Aurand, M. L. Deitzler, of Aaronsburg, and F. P. Manhart of Bloomsburg will be present and assist at the re-dedication services Sunday, Sept. 11th.

—John have you seen that woman lately?

John, in astonishment: What woman? That woman picking Grapes for Speer's Wine. Just see her in another column and read about it, the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the World. The Board of Health in Large Cities and leading Hospitals have adopted their use where wines are needed.

KNIGHTS OF THE GOLDEN EAGLE.—The following statistics as to the condition of the order in Centre county, are gleaned from the report of District Grand Chief T. B. Jamison, of Spring Mills:

Centre Castle, No. 169, of Spring Mills; instituted March 22, 1887; initiations during the past six months 40; membership 40; invested $248.65.

Philipsburg Castle, No. 193, of Philipsburg; instituted, August 12, 1887; with 65 members.

—A good appetite is essential to good health; but at this season it is often lost, owing to the poverty or impurity of the blood, derangement of the digestive organs, and the weakening effect of the changing season. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful medicine for creating an appetite, toning the digestion, and giving strength to the whole system. Now is the time to take it. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—Jewhilikens! Have you seen the show bills of the Lewisburg fair? They are as large and showy as a circus bill. But there is this difference: Circus bills tell more than they show, while the Lewisburg fair always shows more than the bills tell. Elam Meixell has ordered a family of Prairie Dogs to place on the grounds. They are expecting the largest crowd and finest show ever seen in the valley. Save up your money and take it in, Sept. 21st—24th.

THE 148TH P. V., AT COBURN.—All the Centre county members of the 148th Regiment, P. V., who participated in the battle of Gettysburg are earnestly requested to be present at the re-union of the Veteran Club at Coburn on the 10th instant, for the purpose of taking action on the erection of their monument on that battlefield. Major Harry Forster, of Harrisburg, has consented to be present on that occasion and his efforts will be valuable in completing whatever arrangements may be made.

—On Thursday a car load of one hundred children passed through Sunbury on their way home to Philadelphia. They had been spending a week among the farmers back of Lewisburg and were sent out by a society in Philadelphia who raise a fund for that purpose. This is the first lot who have ever been sent so far away from home and a large majority have never been out of the city before. They were in charge of a lady, one of the members of the society. The railroad company carry them for half a cent a mile and give them a special car.—Sunbury Democrat.

—Prof. Gomer Thomas, of Danville, Pa., registered at the National hotel on Tuesday. He is the proprietor of a well-established music store in that town, dealing in all kinds of musical instruments, especially in pianos and organs. He also carries a large stock of sheet music which he sells 33 per cent. cheaper than any other dealer. Much of the music he composes and publishes himself and, judging from several complimentary pieces with which the author presented us, his compositions cannot fail to become very popular for beauty and pleasing effect. If in need of brilliant instrumental music or new songs address the publisher at Danville, Pa.

—On next Tuesday morning J. F. Harter and J. H. B. Hartman will take little Johnny Clark, who has become quite a notorious boy in this section by his evident musical talent, to Philadelphia, to become an inmate of the Home for the Blind. Johnny says he expects to join the band of that institution if they let him. Little Clark is a grandson of John D. Foote, Bell, late of Millheim, and will be the fourth of that family to enter a public institution in Philadelphia, Frank Foote being in the House of Refuge, and Ed and Fred in Girard College. The latter three are sons of the late John D. Foote.

—"A golden object has been accomplished and with this we rest," is the last sentence of an article in the Bellefonte Gazette, in which it relates that a representative of that paper was in the jail the other day and found officer Fouke scrubbing and cleaning the cells and halls of the building. Editor Fleiker claims that this cleansing process is the result of his "crushing" editorials about bedbugs, lice, &c. As if the jail had never seen a broom or a bucket of water before the Gazette was brought into existence. What a glorious mission that paper has in this county, anyway. It is said that newspapers are the educators of our people. Well, the readers of the Gazette are welcome to all the instruction and information they can get out of the caricatures with which the enterprising editor of that sheet sees fit to illustrate his columns.

TEMPERANCE LECTURES.—Gen. A. Hilton, of Washington, D. C., will lecture on Temperance in the Methodist church at Millheim Sept. 10th, 11th and 12th, afternoon and evening. Doors open for all and a general invitation is extended. The subject is an old one but will always bear a fair and intelligent discussion, which should be listened to by everybody. The following special correspondence to the Bellefonte Democrat refers favorably to his lectures:

GEN. A. HILTON IN LEMONT.—By far the most practical temperance work ever done in this part of the State has been during the past six days. Major Hilton, the Evangelist from Washington, has held two meetings each day. The capacity of our Opera House has never been successfully tested, and the throng each night has sat as under a magic spell listening to the burning words of truth coming from this able advocate of moral reform. The entire country is feeling the effects of these meetings. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has added over one hundred to its membership. Two new Young Woman's Unions have been formed, and a Citizens' Law and Order League, composed of the leading citizens, has been formed, having for its object the enforcement of existing laws and the punishment of violators.

Major Hilton's practical manner of dealing with the evils of the liquor traffic, together with the light eloquently shed upon its monstrous wicked influence, has created a widespread determination to act promptly for its suppression. Many temperance workers have been here, but none have before so aroused public feeling.

—Judging from the present out-look the prospects of establishing a fourth school in this borough are very slim. Why it is so we are not able to see. But we would say that it would be a grave mistake on the part of our school board to let the matter rest where it is. As we have remarked in a former issue the number of school children in this town is entirely too great for three schools. To pack from 70 to 80 children into a school room, the capacity of which is only 50, is a willful transgression of all sanitary rules. Again it is simply an impossibility for any teacher to do justice to such a room full of children. The different recitation classes will be too large to devote much time to either of them and the teacher must exercise undue haste to finish his day's work. A natural consequence is that the common school education of our children will be skimped, if not entirely neglected. This should not be the case in an enlightened age like the one we are living in. We hope our esteemed schoolboard will not refuse to do what appears their evident duty because a few are parsimonious enough to oppose a move in the right direction. The health and education of our children should not be sacrificed for the sake of a few dollars and cents. Let all look at this important matter in the proper light and with a liberal spirit.

—September is after all the most pleasant month in the year for picnics and fairs. The rays of the sun deal out a moderate warmth, while the breezes are cool and the air invigorating. And this delightful combination in the atmosphere is certainly being taken advantage of this month. To start with the Veteran Club of Centre county will meet in a beautiful grove near Coburn, belonging to Mr. Evert, next Saturday, and all endeavors of the committee in charge are tending to make this gathering one of general good feeling and enjoyment. Special trains will carry hundreds to this charming place and a large crowd may be expected to spend a day of pleasure and merriment in the woods. Following this will be the Grangers' Picnic, on the summit of Nittany mountain, next week, to last two days, Wednesday and Thursday. Their picnics have always been largely patronized, and will be more so this year, as special and extensive preparations have been made to entertain the crowd in the most agreeable manner. Next in order is the Lewisburg fair, in the following week and many will go to that because the Union county agricultural society have established a good reputation for a getting up interesting fairs. Those wishing to enjoy themselves in a distance need only go to Philadelphia to take in the Constitutional Centennial or else the State fair, both of which are coming off there this month. Thus the first autumn month gives all the opportunity for hearty enjoyment to those who have the health and means to indulge in it.

AARONSBURG.

Book agent Sellick was around and made his delivery of the "Stories of the Bible" last week. The gentleman sold quite a number of books in this place.

L. D. Kurtz, of Millinburg, was up on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week.

Lew Mensh raised about 500 bushels of potatoes.

J. H. Musser bought the L. D. Kurtz residence for $1800.

Mrs. William Harter, (widow,) of this place, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Sam. Campbell, of Millheim, are at present visiting their relatives in Wayne and Stark counties, Ohio.

District Attorney J. C. Meyer and wife, of Bellefonte, are here enjoying a week's visit among their relatives and friends.

J. H. Musser took in the Grangers' picnic at William's Grove last week.

Prof. Wm. T. Meyer, of Shamokin, came up last Saturday to accompany his family home, who had been staying with the lady's parents, J. H. Musser's, for the last few weeks. On Sunday, the gentleman's father, Hon. J. G. Meyer, had a reunion with his children, who were invited to his place for dinner. The following were present with their families:—Prof. W. T. Meyer, Shamokin; Mrs. W. H. Philips and Mrs. L. H. Stover, of Lemoyne; J. C. Meyer, Esq., of Bellefonte. The afternoon was spent very pleasantly.

The children's meeting in the Reformed church on last Sabbath evening was well attended. The exercises were enjoyed by all present. The few select anthems sung by the choir were well rendered.

An alarm of fire was given on last Saturday morning. Upon investigation it was found that Jos. George's hideaway was burning on the outside and inside. No particular loss, but considerable excitement.

The following teachers were selected for the different schools in Haines township:—Aaronsburg, No. 1—R. F. Edmunds; No. 2—E. E. Imler; No. 3—Miss Mary Dellinger; Wolf's—E. D. Thomas; St. Paul's—W. H. Keen; Yocum's—Adam Stamer; Woodward—Miss Greenleaf; Pine Creek—W. T. Wieland; Mountain—Adam Martin. One month has been added to the five month term and we will now have 6 months school, which we consider a move in the proper direction. Schools open on the 26th inst.

Among the visitors and guests in this place since last week, a communication says: Rev. Shoemaker & wife, Rel. minister of Jacksonville, Pa., Mrs. John G. Harris, Milton, Pa., Mrs. R. H. Foster, Harrisburg, Pa., Harrison Swartz and Mr. Wetzel, Bellefonte, Pa., Albert Stambach and family, Lock Haven, Pa., Frank Tomlinson, Bellaire, Pa.

Harry Mohl returned home from medical college at Fredburg, last week.

COBURN.

Coburn expects a large day on next Saturday, Sept. 10th, and if the weather be favorable their expectations will surely be realized. The veterans always make a success of their picnic and on this occasion they count upon 2000 people. The festival of the Ladies' Mite Society will be another feature that will help to enliven the day. We hope all will turn out and help to make this one of the greatest days in the history of the place and prove that Coburn is able to entertain her guests no difference how great the number of them.

A wedding came off in Coburn on Thursday evening last, the contracting parties being Mr. Hosterman, a son of Thos. Hosterman, one of our citizens, and a Miss Orndorf, from Woodward. About 9 o'clock the calathumpians turned out in full force and made Rome howl with old circular saws, cans, and anything that would make a noise.

The saw mill here will be compelled to shut down shortly unless they are able to purchase more timber, as, what they had is about sawed out. We should like to see the mill remain here. It gives employment to a number of hands and is a benefit to the place.

Ammon Grenninger and family, of Sugar Valley, spent last Sunday with friends in Coburn.

Mrs. W. H. Kremer is spending a week visiting in Williamsport.

Miss Swengle, of Millheim, spent several days with friends here recently.

A daughter of Jos. Kleckner is paying him a visit.

Mr. Samuel Ard has resigned his position as clerk with Durham Bros. & Co.

Geo. E. Limbert started the other day for Lancaster to prepare for the ministry.

Wyerman Noll and wife, of Bellefonte, spent Saturday with his brother, William Noll, of this place.

Charles Smull met with an accident last Saturday evening. He was starting from home in a buggy, when his horse made a sudden pull which threw the driver out of the vehicle. The horse then ran towards the stable and entered the barn yard through a small gate. The result was that the buggy was badly broken up and the harness torn.

Miss Nestleroad, from Nittany is visiting her uncle Jacob Nestleroad at this place.

Some of the farmers are done seeding, while others are anxiously waiting for rain.

The corn is ripening fast and the farmers cut it off as fast as it ripens.

Abe King, of Millheim, was in town on Saturday and Monday, threshing the small crops raised on town lots.

Michael Rishel lost one of his best horses on last Saturday night. The horse cost Mr. Rishel $165 when but three years old.

J. E. Reber and sister Ida took in the picnic at Tusseyville on Saturday last and report a good time.

Up to this writing Miss Maggie Miller has not improved any.

The bushmeeting, three miles west of town, commenced to-day (Wednesday) the 7th.

Wilson Hazel is moving in his new house.

Charley Grimm and Ross Hockman expect to run a candy stand at the Granger picnic on top of Nittany Mountain next week.

REBERSBURG.

Cutting oat crop is the farmer's programme this week.

Nathan Heck had a lead rolled up one day last week. He was on his way to the barn with a load of lumber, when one of his horses dropped in the traces and died instantly.

Our boss carpenter, Reuben Bierley, and his crew are at present finishing Austin Grumley's house.

A great deal of shooting was going on on the first of this month, but the game gotten wasn't worth the powder.

John Harter bought up three carloads of potatoes, which he shipped on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Rev. Lenhart, who was off to York county visiting and to recuperate, returned home last week, and, glad to say, the desired change for the better seems apparent in his condition.

Perry Condo was rolling land, when he stopped and left his horses stand, to do some other work. The horses took fright at something and run off. They went down the road as hard as they could go but could not make the turn and run into the fence, where they stuck fast until assistance came. Fortunately none of them were hurt.

J. C. Morris was in the western counties last week and sold a lot of school furniture.

Prof. N. A. Beerly left for Chicago, Ill., where he enters a music establishment.

Grandmother Corman, who will be 96 years old next April, walked from the upper end of town to church at the lower end on Sunday last.

Another "wolf" in town; and the postmaster frightened him so badly that he liked himself away to the restaurant.

Willard Blair, of Hollidaysburg, is working in H. E. Faust's carriage shops at Spring Bank.

Mrs. Groh, of Lemont, Ohio, who had been here on a visit, left for home last Monday.

A valuable horse of Michael Rishel died the other day.

Aaron Kirchner, of Sugar Valley, is at Spring Bank with his steam thresher. It is a Yes, I mealtime and does its work very well.

Isaac Boyer's bull, having been left in the field, suddenly got savage and charging for Isaac jumped over Mr. Boyer's son, Luther, injuring him painfully, but not seriously. The beast made for town where he was caught by Squire Corman.

Mrs. Sarah Wolf, the mother of commissioner Wolf, went to Hollidaysburg on Monday to visit some of her children there.

SAMSON.

—That large stock of boots for boys and men at Kauffman's store, on hand now.

GREENBRIER.

On Friday evening Mr. Baney gave an exhibition of his magic lantern in Gentzel's school house. The show was a good one and was well attended.

Last Wednesday Wesley Jones, building at this place, last working on the saw mill at Coburn received a severe and painful bruise on his leg above the knee. While edging a board the saw caught the board and threw it against his leg with awful force.

The Paradise Sunday school had intended to have a picnic, but it was rained down.

The farmers are done with seeding and all hope for a better crop the coming year.

The kiln of brick which are being made for the new Lutheran church at Coburn will be fired some time this week.

The latest sensation here is a fist fight which came off in a cornfield the other day. But we refrain from giving the names of the would-be pugilists.

Lew Gettig, the butcher, was around here for hogs. But he isn't after hogs every time he comes out this way. ZITTKA.

The Fourteenth Annual Gathering of the Grangers' on Top of Nittany Mountain.

The programme for the fourteenth annual pic-nic and exhibition of the Patrons of Husbandry of Centre County, to be held on top of Nittany Mountain September 14-15, is complete.

The committee of arrangements held a meeting on the mountain on Monday, and met a host of exhibitors of agricultural implements, who have staked off the grounds for their use, and will have everything in readiness by Wednesday of next week. Thoroughbred cattle and an innumerable amount of other things will be on the grounds.

Messrs. Batram and Long, of the Harrisburg and Gettysburg railroad company, will positively be present with the sciopticon views of the battlefield of Gettysburg and the national cemetery. Two exhibitions—entirely different—will be given on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, and they will be free to all. Thursday evening Mr. Long will be present and deliver a lecture, explanatory of the various and most magnificent scenes of the late contest on Round Top and Culp's Hill. This will be a particularly interesting feature of the programme.

Over fifty tents have been secured by the various granges throughout the county and by private individuals. The Pennsylvania State Grange, the Centre county, Clinton and Mifflin county Pomona Granges will also have headquarters on the grounds in seperate tents.

Ample provisions have been made for parties who come unprepared with food for man or beast. Mr. D. C. Keller has erected a large boarding house to supply the wants of man, horse feed, etc., will also be on sale. Straw and hay will be furnished gratis to exhibitors of stock.

The road leading to the pic-nic ground from both sides of the mountain will be illuminated by large candles, thus making the passage way as safe at night as in daylight.

Although the pic-nic and exhibition proper does not open until Wednesday and Thursday, September 14th and 15th, the committee of arrangements, as well as many others, will be on the grounds on Monday and Tuesday previous to meet exhibitors, etc., and assist in arranging implements, etc.

Excursion tickets from all points on the Lewisburg and Tyrone and Bald Eagle Valley railroads will be sold on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, good to return on Friday, at the regular two-third rate—two cents per mile. Hacks and conveyances will meet all trains to transport arrivals to the pic-nic grounds.

Salt Rheum

The agonies of those who suffer from severe salt rheum are indescribable. The cleansing, healing, purifying influences of Hood's Sarsaparilla are unequalled by any other medicine.

"I take pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla, for it has done wonders for me. I had salt rheum very severely, affecting me over nearly my entire body. Only those who have suffered from this disease in its worst form can imagine the extent of my affliction. I tried many medicines, but failed to receive benefit until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. Then the disease began to subside, the disappeared, and now I am entirely free from the disease. My blood seems to be thoroughly purified, and my general health is greatly benefited." LYMAN ALLEN, Sexton M. E. Church, North Chicago, Ill.

"My son had salt rheum on his hands and the calves of his legs, so bad that they would crack open and bleed. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. B. STANTON, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

From 108 to 135

"I was seriously troubled with salt rheum for three years, and receiving no benefit from medical treatment I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Ham now entirely cured of salt rheum; my weight has increased from 108 lbs. to 135." MISS. ALICE SMITH, Stamford, Conn.

If you suffer from salt rheum, or any blood disease, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured many others, and will cure you.

RIVER PIRATES.

Dams Erected on the Susquehanna in Defiance of the Law.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 1.—S. B. Stillwater, of this place, one of the fish commissioners, has just been furnished with complete information regarding the acts of the fish pirates of the North Branch of the Susquehanna between Beach Haven and Berwick. Special complaint is lodged against John Chamberlain, of Berwick, who has no less than seventeen fish dams in active operation, and in bold defiance of the law. Officers have time and again made tours down the river and destroyed every one of the illegal dams, but as often would the violators rebuild them, and now they threaten to meet the next sheriff's posse with an armed resistance and will fight to maintain wrongs. They have erected on the river, just north of Berwick, a perfect barricade for the dams, and the work of the pirates goes on unceasingly night and day in enlarging their operations, until now it would take a strong force of officers to remove them without force of arms. The state board of fishery commissioners will now take the matter in hand and will hold a meeting for that purpose at Harrisburg.

SWEPT AWAY BY FLOODS.

Many Houses Carried off at Morgan, Texas, and in the Neighboring Places.

MORGAN, Tex., Sept. 1.—The hardest rain that ever fell in this county began on Tuesday night and continued without cessation. The damage to farmers in the low valley lands in every portion of the county is estimated at thousands of dollars. The Central and the Gulf Colorado and Santa Fe railways are being badly damaged, and it will be many days before either of them can move trains. The following business houses with all their goods went down Bosque river:

Sellers & Hamilton's dry goods store; Sam Frank, groceries; M. McHail, groceries; J. H. Justice, saddler shop; Anderson, furniture store, and three cotton gins. Nine dwellings were washed away. Besides these houses, which are entirely gone, every house in the town is damaged.

At Whitney, twenty-two miles east in Hill county, a number of houses were washed away. At Meridan a man was drowned in swimming to his house. Between here and Cleburne a distance thirty miles, there are eight washouts on the Sante Fe road. Three of the number are the large iron bridges which span the Nolam river. Two large iron bridges, which have stood the storm for years, are completely destroyed. Between here and Hico, on the Central road, thirty-one miles distant, there are eleven bridges washed away. The loss is over $100,000.

WACO, Tex., Sept. 1.—The Brazos river is very high and a wide expanse of its bottom lands with the best of the cotton crop of Central Texas is submerged. Senator Coke and Governor Ross have plantations in the bottoms. These are both in the midst of the worst inundation. The loss will be very great amounting up in the region of the millions. The country is well nigh impassable, many bridges having been washed away by the floods.

THE TINFOIL BUSINESS.

A Big Industry of Special Concern to Smokers or Chewers.

"What was that he threw away?"

"Oh, only a piece of tinfoil. Did you ever consider how large a manufacture of that article, apparently of so little value, is carried on? Will you believe it when you are told that more than 1,000,000 pounds of the foil are used annually to cover the smoking and chewing tobacco manufactured in the United States alone? The method of making it is interesting. The tin is of course first taken out of the mines, the best of which for this purpose are in Australia and the Dutch possessions of the East Indies. The metal is found in veins of fissures called lodes, though it is also often found in a dispersed form in loose stones, which, when found continuously are called streams. The rock containing the ore is blasted with gunpowder and carried to the stamping mill, where it is pounded and washed. It is next smelted and the tin run into blocks containing from 200 to 400 weight each. This is the condition in which the metal is kept for ordinary use.

Two means are used to reduce it to the necessary thinness. The old manner of hammering by hand after first being cut is used to a great extent. By this process, however, only one surface could be produced, and to obviate this difficulty rolling mills were invented. Prior to their invention nearly all the tinfoil was imported, but their use has completely revolutionized the trade. The metal is now placed between two heavy rollers, which gives it a finished surface on both sides. It is then cut into widths of from 12 to 15 inches, rolled upon wooden reels and carried to cutting machines, where it is cut according to order. It is then packed in boxes of 100 pounds each, being laid in without pressure. There is another difference between the foil which is beaten and that which is rolled. The former is full of small holes, but the foil to be used for tobacco wrappers must be air tight.—Baltimore Sun.

"Don't you think," she asked softly, 'that the sea is lovely?" "Yes, I think it is sort of lovely, but not as loyely as—but what makes you ask?" "Just to give you a chance to say something. But you don't seem to have the nerve." It was the last walk she ever took with him.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

The Principles of the Party Enunciated by the Allentown Convention.

The resolutions are as follows:

1. That we renew our allegiance to the principles and declarations of the platform adopted in Chicago in 1884, which Cleveland, the nominee of the party heartily endorsed declaring in his letter of acceptance: "I have carefully considered the platform adopted by the convention and cordially approve the same. So plain a statement of democratic faith and the principles upon which that party appeals to the suffrages of the people needs no supplement or explanation." To these principles he has faithfully adhered in all his public utterances. We further affirm that the platform adopted by our state convention of 1886, and in view of the existing condition of the public treasury we demand with emphasis that the large surplus already in the treasury shall be used to pay the public debt, and that the current and unnecessary increase going on beyond the needs of government shall be immediately prevented by wise and prudent reduction of internal taxation and of duties on imports in accordance with the foregoing declarations.

2. That we fully endorse the administration of President Cleveland, as wise, sagacious and patriotic. He has restored confidence to the business interests of the country in the democratic party, has directed the financial affairs of the government with apt ability, has strengthened the public credit, and thereby given us a period of great industrial and commercial prosperity. The apprehension in the minds of some that the advent of our party to the control of the federal government would be dangerous has been dispelled. Our people are more contented and well-to-do than in years; is more respected than ever by other nations; his period of administration has been pure, economical, cool and fearless, and meets the approval of all fair-minded and conservative citizens.

3. We recognize the material benefits which this country has received from immigration. We endorse the legislation of congress against the importation of contract labor and to compel the return of paupers and criminals. We commend the national administration for its efforts to rigidly enforce these laws, and while we are opposed to any illiberal restrictions, we favor such additional measures of regulation as may be found necessary.

4. We favor liberal pensions to deserving Union soldiers and sailors and refer to the action of the present administration in adding to the pension rolls a larger number than was ever before placed on within a corresponding period, while at the same time protecting the treasury from fraudulent claims as proof of this fact.

5. We point with pride to the fact that since the democrats have been in power, in any branch of the federal government, not one acre of the public lands has been granted to corporations nor has any land grant been revived or extended.

6. The failure of the state revenue bill after it had been carefully perfected and nearly unanimously passed by both branches of the legislature was a crime against the majority of the commonwealth, whereby the people must pay a million dollars annually that should and would have been paid by the corporations, and the failure of the state administration to attempt any correction of the wrongdoing or exposure of that fraud or criminal neglect confirmed a crime against both authority and people, and confessed the supremacy of ring rule in Pennsylvania.

7. That we reaffirm our declaration in favor of the passage of such legislation as will properly enforce the provisions of act seventeen of the constitution relative to corporations to previous improper discrimination, and to equalize taxation.

8. That we denounce the action of the last republican legislature in the defeat of the bill for the relief of producers and refiners of oil in the oil districts of the state, known as the Billingsley bill, as being in the interest of monopolists and against the interest of the people of that large section of the state.

9. The democratic party sympathizes with the oppressed of all nations, and in all movements having for their object the attainment of the blessings of local self-government such as are enjoyed by the people of this Union as the result of the enforcement of the democratic policy. The granting of home rule to Ireland is due as the acknowledgement of a sacred inherent right, and the gallant struggle for the accomplishment of this long delayed act of justice under the magnificent leadership of Gladstone and Parnell commends itself to the moral support of the American people. It is our earnest wish that the efforts of these distinguished statesmen may soon be crowned with success.

We still hold to the ancient doctrine of the party that the preservation of the rights of the people demands that we should look jealously upon monopolies and restrict corporate power within the proper sphere and we heartily approve the action of the national administration in reclaiming and throwing open to the people for the settlement of 100,000,000 acres of land, which through artifice and fraud were wrongfully held by corporations having been forfeited to the people by failure to comply with the conditions of the grants.

Shoot the Rougitoes.

Wanted, a chromo of the man who said that oil of pennyroyal would discourage mosquitoes and cause them from intruding, as it were. Last week we bought two ounces of oil of pennyroyal and took it to our summering place in New Jersey for the Pomeroyal family to rejoice at. Occasionally a mosquito eats over New Jersey with a devil's darning needle under its left wing, drops it and descends to Billingsgate, as his loutorish hoodlum hum clearly is. We annointed the heads, heels and hips of our kinde with the oil of p. We watted it with great dexterity and correctness of aim over the sheets and pillows of the couch whereon the heads of the family repose till the air was so redolent and red-hotolent of pennyroyal as ever was the butt-end of the old side hill sheep pasture on Suly Creek.

Then, with a window open for the cool air to get in and a door open for the humidity to get out, we hied us to bed and into the arms of Morpheus. In one hour something seemed to call us from sleep. The room was full of pennyroyal and mosquitoes. The top of our best summer head felt like a ladies' reticule full of hot hickory nuts. On the back of our neck was a lump that felt as large and as warm as a carriage lamp. Only a mosquito bite, that, as it gradually faded away, we used for two weeks as a collar-button. Our body felt like a boy's pants filled with stolen muskmelons, such was the mountain and valley system of the mosquito creation. We felt like a Colorado valley full of hot springs that had lifted the sod up like a convention of haycocks but had not yet burst.

There were not quite two millions of mosquitoes in the room, as seventeen of them had gone to Hackensack to invite a few tribes from that district to come over to a pennyroyal feast. One mosquito sat on the edge of the bottle that was half full of pennyroyal when we went to bed, and was feeling down into it for encouragement. The cork had been pried out and sucked dry. The bottle would have been tipped over but for the fact that it was bedded in mosquitoes. One old boss mosquito sat on the left-hand upper corner of a frame that surrounded a worsted "God Bless Our Home" motto, and motioned out—"Them's my sentiments, Alabama!" Here we rest. Half a dozen regular old New Jersey mosquitoes had taken our pants down from the corner of the clock, got our bocketbook and were counting our cash to see if we had enough to buy a barrel of oil of pennyroyal for the next night. A friend of ours in Newark, going home from the lodge about 11 o'clock, smelt what he thought was the essential oil end of a drug store coming toward him, but it proved to be only a mosquito about the size of a woodcock flying home with an oil of pennyroyal lunch.

Yes, oil of pennyroyal appears to be good for mosquitoes.—Pomeroy's Advance Thought.

"Pops" Hurt the Peanut Trade.

Reputable dealers in Virginia peanuts are mourning over the unnecessary prostration of their summer trade. They severely denounce the avarice of shippers who have been sending forward a large quantity of stock known as "pops." These nuts are light enough to be blown out of the sorting mill where peanuts are bagged for market; they look sound and plump, but contain only useless, shriveled kernels or air. All the consumer obtains in breaking them is an audible "pop;" hence their name. Summer is the harvest time of the peanut dealers. Excursions, race tracks, picnics and baseball grounds all want big supplies. This season, however, indifferent venders have taken advantage of the time to retail this valueless nut upon crowded places. At a large gathering at St. George recently a dealer who investigated the matter found only three out twenty-eight retailers sell prime full stock.

These inferior nuts can be obtained for $3 a bag while the best sort commands $5. This affords an enormous temporary profit, as it is known that over 100 per cent. can be realized on the best quality at quart rates. New York and surrounding towns now use and handle almost $500,000 worth of peanuts a year, and it would certainly be prudent for shippers to burn the objectional "pops" which have become so detrimental to the general trade, as they would realize quite as much profit from the advance that usually occurs here during an active summer for trustworthy goods.—New York Tribune.

"Auntie."

Not long ago Mark Twain was traveling in the country, and stopped one evening at a house presided over by an elderly woman. He was shown to a room somewhat bare of ornament and furniture and yet slept peacefully until morning. When morning came and he arose, he became mindful of the fact that although he had provided himself with a tooth brush, he had forgotten his tooth powder. He had consoled himself with the idea that there must be tooth powder lying about somewhere. After a brief search he discovered something in a small box on the mantle which certainly resembled tooth powder. At any rate he used it vigorously on his teeth, and found it satisfactory. When he got down stairs he apologized to his hostess for using her tooth powder. She appeared surprised.

"What tooth powder?" she inquired, blandly.

"It was on the mantle," Mark replied.

"On the mantle?" she repeated.

"Yes, a small box; it was excellent," he declared.

"Good gracious!" she ejaculated, "that wasn't tooth powder."

"What was it?" asked Mark, now slightly alarmed.

"Why, that was auntie!" said she.

It seems that "auntie" had been cremated.

SAVING THE PIECES.

Methods Adopted by Plate Glass Insurance Men to Reduce Apparent Losses.

"Our business is not so risky as fire insurance," said the agent of a company that insures glass, "because we can better protect ourselves against overvaluation and our losses are lessened by salvage. Plate glass windows, as a general thing, meet with damage from three different causes. Fire destroys the most, many are broken by accident or through malice, while a few are blown in by wind storms. It is very seldom that a window is so badly shattered that we can't save some portion of it, and as we make it a rule to replace all panes that are broken, instead of paying out the value in cash, you can readily see that our losses are not so heavy, unless a very large pane gets shivered into atoms. We buy the glass at a good discount and have our own men to put it in. It is only in exceptionable cases that we are unable to replace a pane from our stock on hand. Even scraps are of value. They are put to many uses, especially for shelves in front of the cashiers' windows in banks and other offices.

"Plate glass is one of the most peculiar things in the world. At times it will stand any amount of hard usage, and then again the least thing will break it. I could tell you many queer stories in this relation. I have dropped a heavy hammer on a piece without injuring it, and when I have tried to show a friend how hard a blow it would stand I have had it grind into powder."—Patriot.

THE "OLD SALTS" SMILED.

Jack Tars Delight With an Ice-Making Machine.

An ice-making machine was recently placed on board the new United States cruiser Boston. It is the first time an apparatus of that kind has ever been introduced on an American war ship. The officers anticipated that the old shellbacks would frown upon it and point out many supposed defects. Instead they showed a great fondness for it, and when on exhibition it turned out large cakes of ice within 10 minutes and they went wild with delight. A few days later the commanding officer of the vessel was surprised to observe a great crowd of people crossing the yard in the direction of his vessel. In groups of three and four they approached the gang-plank and begged permisson to go on board. The sailors had issued a general invitation to all their acquaintances to visit the craft and inspect the ice-making machine. All that day the visitors called, until it became necessary to refuse them the privilege of going on board.

Naval Master Mechanic Brown says the machine is used only as an experiment. The trial is made for the purpose or equipping vessels on the Asiatic squadron. The government has found that in hot climates the officers and crew suffer from a want of ice, and it is believed that the innovation will be great economy and a benefit to the navy.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A FRENCH woman sued for a divorce recently because her husband kissed the servant girl. "You want this man punished?" asked the judge. "I do," said she. "Then," said the dispenser of justice, "I shall not divorce you from him."

Epicurean Animals.

Oysters and candy are accounted as delicacies only to delight the human palate, and it is a rare thing for either to be fed to an animal. There are in this city, however, a horse and a dog who have been educated to eat the morsels with great relish, and the animals are accounted great curiosities. The horse is owned by a South Ninth street oyster dealer, and daily consumes a large quantity of the toothsome bivalves, invariably taking them upon the half shell. The horse's appetite for oysters is such that while standing in front of the store he has to be securely tied and all the shell-fish removed from his reach. When his owner goes to the wharves for a supply of oysters the ringing sound of the knife as the oysters are being opened frenzies the horse, and he uses every endeavor to get to the spot where he can satiate his unnatural appetite. Plated oysters he does not care for, and when offered to him he will show his dislike by elevating his nose. When the oysters are offered on the shell, however, he evinces his pleasure by an expression that partakes almost the nature of a smile as he consumes dozen after dozen of the choicest salts.

The candy-eating dog is owned by a cigar-dealer on Girard avenue, above Eleventh street. Upon the southeast corner of the two streets is a booth where stick candy is sold, and the keeper of the stand classes the dog among his best customers. Passengers at the transfer station near by often notice the dog coming away from the stand with a stick of candy in his mouth, and they generally believe the kind-hearted old man has given it to the animal. Not so, however, for the dog pays for each stick he gets with the pennies given him by the frequenters of the cigar-store. He takes the penny in his mouth, and dropping it upon the pavement at the booth, receives his candy and returns home to enjoy it. A few nights ago he had unusual good luck, three pennies being given to him. The first two he spent upon himself, but on the third trip he made to the candy-stand he had a smaller dog with him. After getting a stick of candy he bit it in two equal parts, and giving one piece to the smaller dog, took the other himself. The two animals then trotted to Girard avenue to hunt up a place where they could eat their sweetmeats unmolested.—Phila. Record.

A Midnight Battle With a Panther.

A few days since John McAntee, a prominent mountaineer of West Virginia, started from a neighbor's residence at nightfall for his home, several miles off. The path he followed led through thick woodlands. It had grown intensely dark, and he was stumbling along the path when his blood curdled at the horrible scream of a panther, apparently some distance away. He hesitated to retrace his steps, when the scream was heard again, this time much closer. McAtee realized that the beast was on his trail, and drawing a large sheath-knife, the only weapon he carried, he boldly pushed forward. He had traveled perhaps two hundred yards when the cracking of twigs in a low tree a few yards ahead attracted his attention. Looking up he saw two frightful balls of fire glaring at him. The next moment the beast sprang upon him. A bloody battle took place, in which the panther was killed and the man badly wounded. The beast measured eight feet.

Getting Admitted.

A young man dropped into the office of a Dakota lawyer and said:

"What is a habeas corpus?"

"It is a kind of writ for——"

"That's all I want to know about it. Is a mandamus a writ, too?"

"Yes."

"Use pretty considerable of these writs in the law business, I reckon."

"Yes, there are a number of different kinds."

"What is the usual rate for making collections in the territory?"

"We usually take about half."

"All right—thanks. You see, I made up my mind this morning to become a lawyer and wanted to get a point or two. I'm going over to get admitted to the bar now before court adjourns; I'll hang out my shingle in the morning."
